

National Disability Insurance Scheme (NDIS) Fact Sheet

Background

Specialist Disability Accommodation (SDA) is a range of housing designed for people with extreme functional impairment or very high support needs which is funded under the National Disability Insurance Scheme (NDIS). Pepper seeks to support this industry by providing finance for SDA properties to support such accommodation to become available for NDIS participants.

There are 4 building types under SDA:

- Apartments - self contained units that are part of larger residential building
- Duplexes, villas, townhouses - separate but semi-attached properties within a single land title or strata titled area. This also includes stand-alone villas or granny flats.
- Houses - detached low-rise buildings with garden or courtyard areas
- Group homes - houses that have 4 or 5 residents

Properties can support participants with high care or low care needs.

SDA design categories

Improved liveability – housing with better physical access. It also has more features for people with sensory, intellectual or cognitive impairments. For example, you may need walls and floors that are very easy to see, living areas that mean your support workers can see you easily, or very few stairs in your home.

Fully accessible – housing with a high level of physical access features for people who have lots of physical challenges. For example, you need to use a manual or powered wheelchair at home, or can't use steps.

Robust – housing that is very strong and durable, reducing the need for repairs and maintenance. The way it is built should make it safe for you and others. This type of design category may suit people who need help managing complex and challenging behaviours. We think about how often you currently cause property damage, and the extent of the damage.

High physical support – housing that includes a high level of physical access for people who need very high levels of support. For example, you may need a ceiling hoist, backup power supply, or home automation and communication technology.

Requirements of an SDA provider

- An SDA provider must be registered with the NDIA. List of registered providers | NDIS Quality and Safeguards Commission \(ndiscommission.gov.au\)
- The property being used for this type of accommodation must be enrolled and approved by the NDIS (prior to June 2020) or NDIA after this date.
- The property will be managed by an approved SDA provider who in turn pays rental to the property owner for use of the property.

Acceptable Income

A lease between the landlord (Property Owner) and approved SDA provider is required for the agreed NDIS SDA rental payment.

- Lease will provide the respective terms and conditions including income and whether outgoings are paid for by the landlord or the SDA provider.
