

A really helpful social media guide

Module 3: Your action plan

Guidrails for success

Here are eight practical steps to help you get more out of social media:

Set clear goals

Are you aiming to build awareness, generate leads or keep clients engaged? Your goals shape your content and help you measure what's working.

Know your audience

Think about their age, life stage, profession, location and financial goals. Tailor your content to what matters to them.

Choose your channels wisely

You don't need to be on every platform. Pick one or two channels where your audience is active and where you can show up regularly. It's about being where your audience is and showing up with value.

Create a content plan

Build a bank of content that speaks to your audience's challenges and questions. Mix it up with tips, updates, client stories, FAQs and milestones. Keep it helpful and human.

Use a content calendar

Consistency builds trust. Plan your posts ahead of time and keep your feed active. Even one post a week makes a difference. Scheduling tools can help you stay on track and free up time to engage.

Engage, listen and respond

Social media is a two-way street. Like, reply, tag, and engage. Watch for feedback and respond thoughtfully. If a complaint comes through, make sure it's recorded or escalated. Being present builds trust and shows you care.

Cross promote

Make it easy for people to find and follow you. Add social icons to your website, email signature, newsletters and client communications. Every touchpoint is a chance to grow your audience.

Check your progress

Use platform insights or tools like Hootsuite, Zoho or Sprout Social to see what's working. Look at engagement, reach, clicks and follower growth. Use the data to refine your strategy and improve results.

Now develop some content ideas.

Think back to your goals and audience. What would they find engaging, entertaining, or educational?

What would help you build awareness or generate leads with non-conforming audiences?

Engage

E.g. examples of people whose lives have been changed for the better because they found that they had options. This can give hope to others and encourage them to reach out.

Entertain

E.g. behind the scenes - let them know the real you and help build trust.

Educate

E.g. Building financial literacy is something we should all be trying for because it improves wealth outcomes.

Make a plan and measure your progress.

Choose 1-2 channels where your audience is active and where you can show up consistently. Then map out a mix of content that covers each category.
